Mark McGregor
Former Ice Hockey Coach and Performance Trainer

Mark McGregor was team manager for the Canadian National ice hockey team, Team Canada. As team manager, he was responsible for recruiting Canadian players in Europe and developing the team. During an impressive career he has been an in-house trainer with various companies and organizations and a keynote speaker at many events world-wide. Since 1999, he has been ranked as one of the top speakers at the St. Gallen Business School, the St. Gallen Management Program and the St. Gallen Management Institute.

"Great leaders have enormous energy and the ability to energize others, set aggressive goals and reward progress." Mark McGregor

In detail

After playing ice hockey for many years through minor, junior and university ranks, Mark became an ice hockey coach in Germany and in the Swiss National A League. In Australia, he worked for the world's largest management training group and in Canada, he was a trainer with Canada's biggest leadership and customer service training institute. Twice, he was rated by the participating companies as the top 'management trainer of the year' out of thirty speakers across Canada.
