

Tim Lovejoy
Television Presenter and Host

CSA CELEBRITY SPEAKERS

Tim Lovejoy is a renowned television presenter and host. From 2006 to 2012 Tim co-presented the incredibly popular TV show Something for the Weekend on BBC2. Also in 2011, Tim launched allplay - a national campaign to help more people play tennis and promote the sport. In 2012, Tim signed up for a huge bike ride for Right to Play from the start of the Tour de France to the 2012 Olympic stadium in London - 300 miles over 3 days.

"Love of music is second only to his passion for the beautiful game" Evening Standard

In detail

Tim moved into television as a covering VJ for MTV. He then joined Planet 24 where he worked as a researcher for The Big Breakfast and progressed to produce the show. Tim, who joined Sky Sports at the beginning of the 1996-97 season, spent many years combining his busy television schedule with presenting a music show on London's XFM radio along with a brief stint on Virgin radio. He is also known as the former presenter on the award winning Saturday morning show Soccer AM on Sky Sports. In 2009 he appeared on Britain's Got More Talent and BBC One's This Week and co-presented Sport Express on Radio 5 Live. In 2010 he was successfully chosen to join the Blue Peter team as a guest presenter.

What he offers you

His typical humour has made him a popular face in UK programming and in general with the British public. He draws audiences into the spirit of the event, holding their attention and making them laugh hysterically.

How he presents

Charismatic, ultra cool and quick witted, Tim adds immense appeal to any event whether presenting, hosting or handing out awards.

Languages

He presents in English.

Want to know more?

Give us a call or send us an e-mail to find out exactly what he could bring to your event.

How to book him?

Simply phone or e-mail us.

Topics

Presenter
Host
Awards